Welcome to the WIPO Wiki

The WIPO Wiki is a tool which allows WIPO staff, external partners and stakeholders to collaborate and communicate online.

Please note that most of the information contained in this Wiki is accessible to registered users only.

To view this information, you need to create an external WIPO account.
You can be granted additional access rights once your account is created and validated. If you require access to specific areas of interest or would like advanced access rights to contribute to certain areas, please get in touch with your focal point at WIPO or our technical support team.

Getting started

- If you don't have an WIPO external account yet, create one.
- Once your external account is enabled and validated, you can login to the external WIPO Wiki using your new account.
